

SENTIMENT NOW AGAINST MOVE

Milwaukee Chamber Of Commerce Is In Opposition To Removal Of Capitol.

REPAIR OLD BUILDING IS THE CRY

Railway Hearing Continues—Newspaper Representatives Got After The Noble And Dinsdale Bills.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 1.—The senate today received a communication from the Milwaukee chamber of commerce in opposition to the removal of the capitol. W. L. Root, a former assemblyman from Outagamie county, communicated one to similar effect. The sentiment in favor of the capitol removal is dying out and the demand is growing for the repair of the present building instead of building a new one, that is, to spend a half a million dollars instead of five millions. The assembly committee on state affairs introduced a bill to appropriate a half million for repairs, and necessary additions.

Hearing Continued.
The joint committee on railroads is continuing the hearing on the rate commission bill this afternoon. General Attorney Lines of Chicago is talking for the Northwestern, and General Attorney Butler of Minneapolis, arguing against the bill for the Omaha road.

The Noble Bill.
With a lobby representative of the press of the state, the medical profession and the compounders of patent and proprietary medicines. Dr. Noble's bills drawn for the alleged purpose of protecting the uninformed public against the use of injurious medicines by requiring formulas on so-called patent medicines and to give to the state board of medical examiners the right to revoke the licenses of practicing physicians for cause, seemed to have little ground on which to stand before the senate committee on state affairs when the various speakers finished their carefully prepared arguments. At one time in the course of the hearing, questions were fired so rapidly at the doctor that he found one tongue inadequate to deliver answers, although he was prepared to meet every objection.

Dr. F. X. Schaeffer of Milwaukee spoke against granting to the state board of medical examiners the right to revoke the licenses of practicing physicians, arguing that the present statutes provide sufficiently for punishment in the courts of the state.

Newspaper representatives of Milwaukee papers were present, as well as legal talent, also representatives of the papers' interests and a considerable number of editors of some of the leading dailies of the cities of the second class throughout the state. It was claimed that the right to advertise was an inherent one given by the constitution, and that the state legislature was taking unto itself a power that it did not have in the restriction of advertising.

NAN PATTERSON STILL IN PRISON

Decision in Application for Bail Reserved—Chorus Girl's Health Failing.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
New York, March 1.—Justice Caynor of the Brooklyn supreme court today reserved the decision in the application for bail on the writ certiorari in the case of Nan Patterson, a "Floradora" chorus girl awaiting a new trial on the charge of murdering "Caesar" Young. Attorney Levy stated that Miss Patterson was suffering with general debility as the result of her long confinement in the Tombs, and said that she should be granted an immediate trial or admitted to bail.

INSIDE TROUBLE STILL REMAINS

Revolutionary Movement Has Not Been Lessened by the Concessions.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
St. Petersburg, March 1.—The revolutionary strike movements have extended to Kuznisk in southern Russia. In the fight between the strikers and troops nineteen were killed and forty wounded. A dispatch from Odessa says everything is quiet there. A Warsaw dispatch says that prolonged negotiations have been in progress between the authorities and the strikers in the Warsaw province. Railway Director Ivanoff has informed the railway strikers the czar will concede in all their demands except one, and a strike is in sight.

The governor general today proclaimed a partial state of siege in the government of Kishinev, Lublin, Kielce and Lodz. The proclamation is due to the general disturbed condition of the country. All Poland is now under martial law. The strike at Vistula on the railroad is ended, the strikers having obtained higher wages and other concessions. The train service was resumed.

LA CROSSE ASKS COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION FOR NORMAL

Would Have Eighth School of that Class Situated There—Request Made Last Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 1.—La Crosse's bid for an eighth state normal school was presented last night to the assembly and senate committees on education, sitting in joint session. The committees gave careful attention to the representations of the people from the western city and although no decision as to the nature of the report was announced, it was apparent that the arguments in favor of the establishment of the additional school were received with much favor. The discussion was on the bill introduced by Senator Morris, to appropriate $30,000 for the purchase of a site for a normal school in La Crosse.

DEFECTIVE LAW FREES BANKERS

Failure Of Iowa Legislature To Fix A Penalty Allows Culprits To Escape.

DAVENPORT MAN ADMITS GUILT

But When Father Stands Trial, And Is Released On A Technicality, Son Withdraws Plea.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Davenport, Iowa, March 1.—A serious deficiency in the Iowa criminal laws resulted in Judge Ballinger releasing President M. Beuthlen of the New Liberty, Iowa, savings bank from the indictments for embezzlement against him. The same result is expected in the case of Cashier Arnold Beuthlen of the same bank, notwithstanding that the two men wrecked the New Liberty and Dixon, Iowa, savings banks by embezzling about $100,000.

No Penalty Is Attached.

Arnold Beuthlen pleaded guilty on two counts for embezzlement. His father, Mr. Beuthlen, president of the New Liberty bank, stood trial. The evidence for the state showed numerous loans from the bank made by the Beuthlens to themselves. When the state rested Attorney Louis Block for the prisoners moved that Beuthlen be liberated on the ground that, while the Iowa statutes declare a bank official guilty of embezzlement if he makes a loan to himself, the legislature in drafting the statute had entirely omitted to provide any punishment for the crime. County Attorney Hamann was forced to admit that such was the case, and the court ordered the discharge of the prisoner.

"Angel" To Stage Folk.

The indictment against Arnold Beuthlen, the young cashier who borrowed about $75,000 from the bank and acted as "angel" for the Cleveland Amusement company, probably will fall through for the same cause, as he can still withdraw his plea of guilty. The decision is of state-wide interest, as it means that any officer of savings and state banks in Iowa can "loan" themselves the funds of the bank without being subject to punishment for embezzlement.

BATTLING NELSON WINS OVER YOUNG CORBETT

Chicago Dane Beats the Fighter From Denver, Whose Seconds Throw Up the Sponge in the Ninth.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
San Francisco, Cal., March 1.—Batling Nelson of Chicago made Young Corbett of Denver appear the poorest tyro at the fighting game Tuesday night when he practically knocked him out in the middle of the ninth round at Woodward's pavilion. In order to save their man, a complete knockout the seconds threw up the sponge.

The man who twice met Terry McGovern was not in it with the young Dane at any stage of the game. In the early part of the fight on several occasions he straightened Nelson up with rights and lefts on the jaw, but when it came to following up his advantage his swings were wild. He seemed to be overanxious, while Nelson at all times was cool and confident.

In the seventh round, when it appeared as if Corbett were practically gone, he showed a flash of his old-time speed and landed several severe punches on Nelson's ribs and jaw. It was only a spurt, however, and young Corbett soon lapsed into a semi-grogg condition which lasted until the end of the fight.

Nelson's plan of battle was to force Corbett around the ring, keeping close to him all the time. Whenever Corbett missed a swing Nelson was there with a return which generally landed. From the fifth round on Nelson kept Corbett on the ropes and landed at will.

Corbett in some way managed to protect himself from a knockout blow until the middle of the ninth round. Then in a rally Nelson swung his right over the jaw and Corbett went down on his back. He remained down and then stood up against the ropes, with his hands lowered, unable to protect himself. Nelson partly toppled him over with a swing on the jaw, but before Corbett was fairly on the mat his seconds threw up the sponge. The round lasted two minutes and thirty-five seconds.

In the eighth round Nelson had Corbett against the ropes, and the Denver man claimed foul, and lowered his hands. No foul was apparent, and the referee did not allow it.

Nelson demonstrated he was Corbett's superior in speed, accuracy of aim, ability to take punishment and stiff punches.

After the fight was over Corbett had but little to say. He had no excuses to offer. Nelson, of course, was happy, and his next effort will be to obtain a fight with Britt, who once defeated him.

TEXAN SWEARS HE PAID BRIBE

Testifies to Corrupting District Attorney in Trust Suit.

Austin, Tex., March 1.—The trial of W. W. Moore, the district attorney, who is charged with accepting a bribe of $125,000 from John H. Kirby to dismiss an antitrust suit, was interrupted by the sickness of a juror. Before an adjournment was taken, however, Frank D. Glover, an Austin business man, confessed on the witness stand to being a go-between in the bribery transaction and told how he paid over the money. He said that he took up the matter with Moore at the request of ex-State Treasurer W. B. Workman. When he first laid the matter before Moore the latter wanted $30,000 to settle the case. Glover also said Kirby told him that he had $1,000,000 in bonds and that if the suit was dismissed he could go east and convert them into cash.

IOWA CHECKS STANDARD OIL

Stops the Laying of Pipe Line on Railroad Right of Way.

Burlington, Iowa, March 1.—Iowa has put her foot down on the Standard Oil company and has stopped the building of pipe lines through her territory. An injunction was served on a large gang of workmen near Fort Madison, Iowa, who were engaged in extending the Standard Oil's pipe line from Chicago into Kansas along the right of way of the Santa Fe railroad. The state authorities hold that the charter of the railroad allows the use of right of way solely for railroad purposes.

GOOD YEAR FOR THE PLAYERS

EIGHTEEN SEVENTY-SIX SAW JANESVILLE PROMINENT.

MANY GAMES WERE PLAYED

Results Showed the Janesville Fans Had Plenty of Sport During That Summer.

(By F. Lyman Smith.)

The Centennial year of 1876 witnessed the first real organized baseball in Janesville, more interest being taken in the game than in all previous seasons combined, and while we were late in starting, the fun and disappointments were fast and furious while they lasted, and the excitement greater than has been experienced in this city for many a moon. Preliminary practice on the "gas house hill" developed new aspirants for the honors of the ball field, with possibly a fat salary from some league club in the near future. In the meantime Milwaukee had organized two clubs, one of them, the West Ends, having enclosed grounds of their own and the outlook generally seemed to indicate a strenuous season and if we were to get into the game it was necessary to effect an organization.

The formation of a stock company was, however, a comparatively easy task, and if the same spirit obtained at the present time the matter of organizing a $2500 capitalized stock company would be but a few days' pastime for the proper parties. We had about thirty stockholders and at their first meeting in June the following officers were elected:

President—Chas. E. Mosely.
Vice President—Ed. W. Whitton.
Secretary—Chas. L. Valentine.
Treasurer—C. S. Jackman.

Board of Directors—Chas. A. Porter, C. W. Jackman, C. S. Jackman, E. W. Whitton, W. C. Hette.

Grounds were leased just east of the Dr. Whiting residence which were enclosed and fitted out with a suitable grandstand, etc.

For some reason or other our usual introductory games with Milton were omitted and arrangements made with the Alerts of Milwaukee to open the grounds on July 3rd and the following nine selected to represent the Mutuals:

F. Smith, captain and ss.
J. Morrisey, catcher.
Henry Hanson, pitcher.
W. D. Cantillon, 1st base.
Duck Sutherland, 2nd base.
J. B. Doe, Jr., 3rd base.
Hathaway, center field.
Tom Cantillon, right field.

The writer after being instrumental in arranging the whole affair was unable to take part in the game which might have had something to do with the Mutual's victory by the following score:

Mutuals	O. R.	Alerts	O. R.
Doe, 3b	3	Sullivan, ss	2

D. C. Cantillon, 1b	4	Dever, c	3

D. Sutherland, 2b	4	Fin, rf	2

The shortstop and captain of the Alerts was "Ted" Sullivan, afterwards manager of National League clubs, organizer of leagues, author, etc. The president of the club was Tom Shaughnessy, now known as Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. No. 1 don't think base ball can be credited with his rise in the railroad world. He was getting less than one hundred dollars a month at that time, and the paying of more attention to W. C. Van Horne than base ball started him on his successful career—but Sullivan had way the best of it for quite a while.

A game had also been arranged for July 4th with our old rivals, the Lakesides of Chicago, whose advance announcement was "stronger and better than ever." In that case we must have shown signs of improvement as after ten innings of close and interesting play before a large and excited audience the game was called a draw, each club having scored twelve runs. The Lakesides were a very gentlemanly lot of players and made quite a favorable impression upon our citizens. Among the good plays mentioned in the Gazette were difficult fly catches by Doe, Ebbets and Smith. Four of the hits made by Mutuals were two basers.

Boswick and Reis, catcher and pitcher of the Lakesides, subsequently played in league clubs.

On July 11th another of our conquerors of the year before, the Dreadnaughts, of Chicago, paid us a visit, and of this game the Gazette, which reported same by innings says: "The Mutuals played by far the best game of the season. The catching and pitching of Morrisey and Hanson was fully up to their usual excellence, it having the advantage over other games of being well backed by in and out fields. W. Cantillon played first base without an error as did Smith at short stop. Morrisey's hands were still quite sore which accounts for his errors. Doe played second superbly. From his record of eleven men out through his efforts it is evident that second base was his position. Sutherland on third made several errors but it was his first attempt to play that position which may excuse him. Hathaway made a miff in the eighth inning which gave the Dreadnaughts the two tying rallies, but otherwise his playing was good, he making some beautiful catches. The double plays of Hathaway and Cantillon in the first, Doe and Cantillon in the sixth and Hanson, Doe and Cantillon in the ninth deserve special mention. The line fly taken with one hand by Smith in the fourth inning was the finest catch of the game." And here is the score in detail:

About this time a first class catcher would have been of inestimable value to the Mutuals. Morrisey possessed the ability all right but his hands would not stand the work. Under the present conditions of catching Doe would have been one of the best in the country, but his pardonable fear of foul tips off the bat rendered his efforts very uncertain. The management was willing and liberal in its views but no catcher seemed available so we had to jog along in the best way possible.

The next game was arranged with the Jefferson club for July 18th and as we were to leave that night on a northern trip, little interest seemed to be taken in the game. Hanson and Hathaway were doing the pitching and catching and at the end of the seventh inning they were seven to our five—not a very encouraging outlook for a club starting on a five-hundred mile trip—but Smith and Morrisey went in in the eighth inning, the Jeffersons made no more runs, the Mutuals got ten and won by 15 to 7. Narrow escape from a bad advertising card.

The next day we defeated the La Cross club 9 to 4 and then it was on to Winona where the Mutuals received about as new a deal as was ever handed to a ball club. For reasons mostly affecting the writer (the details of which would fill a large book and are hardly germane to this article), they would not be defeated by a club from Janesville. The first game was very close up to the 8th inning, the score at that time standing three to two in favor of Winona. This was a little too close at that stage of the game and the umpire proceeded to do his stunt. Morrisey had to leave the catcher's position and the final score was 15 to 3 in Winona's favor. Our boys were unable to bat Arundel's swift pitching very effectively, but the Winonas nevertheless took no chances in the next day's game, being better equipped if anything in the umpire line. (Neglected to mention that the feature of the first game was a home-run hit by Doe, he possessing the home plate before the fielder reached the ball.) In the second game Doe was obliged to do the catching and Hanson was in the pitcher's box. Arundel was batted freely from the start and at the end of the fifth inning the score stood 6 to 0 in favor of the Mutuals. From this time until the end of the game it was impossible for us to put a man out on the bases only at the umpire's pleasure. In the ninth inning Sutherland was put in to pitch and with two out and no runs in he struck out the next batter, but Doe, who had up to that time caught splendidly, let the third strike go through his hands thereby losing the game—provided the umpire would have allowed the out—and I have often wondered what a throwing match after the game Doe distanced all competitors and won the prize by a throw of three hundred and eighty feet. The following is the score of the game as taken from the Winona Republican. Most of the errors charged to the Mutuals were fair put outs not allowed by the umpire:

Umpire—Dr. A. P. Gilmore, of Winona.

On July 21st we played the Red Caps at St. Paul and having no catcher the game was a farce and the gate money should have been refunded. The final score was 34 to 11 in favor of St. Paul. The members of the St. Paul club entertained us in a royal manner taking us to the lakes in carriages on Sunday, etc. They had a great lot of singers in their bunch and none of our party will probably ever forget their song: "We'll all go down around St. Paul town." We hovered around St. Paul for several days and I don't believe mine host Allen of the Merchants' Hotel ever entertained a party more appreciative of his bill of fare. Luckily for him (or rather for ourselves) he had far warning on Saturday of the storm's necessity to tide him over Sunday and the waiters at our table have probably never forgotten that Sunday dinner.

Monday morning something had to be done in a business way as we were fast losing our reputation and consequent drawing power. So we finally decided to fix up a pair of gloves for Morrisey, padding the palms and cutting off the fingers. Then a few wagers (easy to obtain) were made on the result of the afternoon's game which resulted in our favor, 15 to 5 and it was a shame to take the money. These two games showed our nine without a catcher and with a catcher as 34 to 11 is to 8 to 15—no prizes for a correct answer.

July 24th we were booked for a game with the Minneapolis club which we won 22 to 13—Forepaugh's circus being a counter attraction. By some misunderstanding we were "laid out" at the Clark House, a second class hotel which did not meet with the approval of our players who had been accustomed to better accommodations—at St. Paul—and there was a great roar at the absence of printed bills of fare, hot water in the lavatory, elevators, etc. While at St. Paul a committee representing the Silver Stars of Northfield extended an invitation for a game in that town, financial inducements for the same being a guarantee of a certain figure, win or lose, or a purse of a larger amount, winner to take all and loser to get nothing. Our manager who had the matter in charge asked my opinion and I told him to take the guarantee, as having played a couple of games against them we had met on the trip and in our condition it was best to take a sure thing. He replied: "Well, we are five hundred miles from home and if we can't beat a club in a little town like that, I for one don't want any of their money," and purse it was. Arriving on the grounds at Northfield the first persons we noticed in Silver Star uniforms were our old comrades Pete Lennahan and Anderson of the Athletics. The game began early as there was only one train a day to St. Paul and that at 4 p. m. The first inning resulted in six for them and nothing for us—and we were then more than five hundred miles from home. Well, the writer as he had previously done on the trip at La Crosse and Minneapolis, went in to try and save the game (and the purse). Morrisey refused to catch and as a last resort Hathaway was induced to go behind the bat and I want to state right here that he earned more money that afternoon than all the catchers in the United States did last year—but he did not get it. The wind was slightly with the pitching and the Silver Stars (who do not get another run until the ninth inning when the hurry incidental to the catching of that train allowed them three more, but we had in the meantime accumulated ten, won the purse, just made the train in our uniforms and every one was happy but poor Hathaway whose hands were a sight to behold. This was a couple of days before the James and Young gang made their raid on Northfield, so it was an unfortunate week for that town. This was the last game of the trip which proved to be reasonably successful. Among those accompanying the nine were C. L. Valentine, C. S. Jackman and Hiram Bump.

HICKS' PROGRAM IS NOT CHEERFUL

PREDICTS USUAL STORMS FOR THIS MONTH.

A SEVERE MARCH BLIZZARD

Conditions Will Be Very Unsettled, and Both Cold and Warm Weather Coming.

Rev. H. Hicks has not the most cheerful outlook for the month of March. He has arranged a weather program which includes much that is the reverse of the present agreeable weather. "This is the forecast: 'The first marked disturbances for March will be central on the 3d, 4th and 5th. These reactionary storms will culminate in high temperature, low barometer, with rain and high winds and blizzards conditions, resulting in snow storms over much of the country to the northward. The Mercury disturbance being central on the 7th, the probabilities are that continued cloudy, threatening, sleety conditions will continue into the regular storm period following.'

"A sudden high barometer with quick and severe change to boreal winds and blizzards conditions may result in the northern sections and on about the 5th, but a rapid reaction to warmer will set in about the 7th, and the 12th. Severe boreal storms with a March cold wave need not surprise one from about the 11th to the 14th.

The most pronounced and general disturbances will arise, and reach their culminating climaxes, during these regular periods. The 15th to 17th will bring marked storm period, culminating in low barometer, rising temperature and general storm conditions, ending in wide areas of rain and snow. Another high barometer and March cold wave may suddenly slip in from the northwest from about the 17th to 19th, but it will give way as suddenly as it came, and the most general and violent storm conditions of the month will appear during the storm period immediately following.

A March Blizzards "This period is from the 19th to the 24th, being at its center on the 21st, the central day of earth's vertical equinoctial period, with the moon at the full, on the celestial equator and in perigee.

"The indications are that tropical storms and hurricanes will reach the extreme parts of our south country about the 19th to 22d, notably on and touching the 21st, and that rain and high winds, turning to snow and very cold for the season, will meet the tropical equatorial storms from the northwest. A severe March blizzard over much of the country northward, is among the probabilities at this period.

Colder Weather

"A reactionary storm period will be central on the 27th, 28th and 29th. At this time the temperature will rise decidedly, the barometer will fall progressively from west to east, and general storms of rain and wind, turning to snow in the north, will pass eastwardly across the country all followed by another decided rise of the barometer, northwesterly winds and cold weather.

"The public should keep in mind the possibility of disastrous floods during the month of March. Frozen streams and rivers that do not break up in February will bring absolute danger to all localities not entirely above the reach of danger. The month will bring a maximum of cold, but much precipitation in the form of rain, sleet or snow will occur, with disagreeable fluctuations of temperature, an unsteady state of the barometer and some furious storms."

SAERVOLD PLEASED

BELOIT AUDIENCE

What Beloit News Says of the Lecturer Who Will Speak Here Tomorrow Evening.

Of the illustrated lecture on "The Land of the Midnight Sun," which will be given by Ola John Saervold at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium tomorrow evening, the following extract from the Beloit Daily News of Jan. 23, 1902, thus describes it:

An audience that packed Trinity Lutheran church to the door Wednesday evening listened to Mr. Ola J. Saervold's intensely interesting lecture on Norway, "The Land of the Midnight Sun." Aided by a stereopticon, Mr. Saervold was enabled to make his story the more vivid and interesting. The lecturer opened the illustrated part of his lecture with views from the most southern portion of the country and carried the audience through its entire length to the extreme northern point, showing a city which is 400 miles farther north than Dawson City, Alaska. At this place it is to be seen more distinct than any other, those far famed northern lights, known as the Aurora Borealis. This picture was excellent. The beautiful valley and river scenery in which Norway is so wonderfully abundant, was vividly displayed upon the screen. The beautiful city of Christiania was very complete in its portrayal, showing the buildings, streets, parks and churches, exterior and interior. One thing which was prominently depicted was the exhaustive expense spent upon the wagon roads showing the great solidity of construction, fabulous sums of money having been used upon them. Historically, Mr. Saervold's lecture was certainly instructive and interesting and it is manifest that he is "master of the situation."

Recipes.

HOW TO MEASURE

Flour is sifted before measuring. Toss all dry ingredients lightly in a cup and level with a knife. Pack shortening solidly in either cup or spoon and level it with a knife.

A cup of liquid is all the cup will hold.

A tablespoon is measured level. A teaspoon is measured level. Divide a tablespoon lengthwise of the bowl, rejecting what you do not want to get a half; divide the half crosswise to get a fourth; divide the fourth the same to get an eighth.

Less than an eighth of a teaspoon is considered a few grains.

Follow same rule when measuring with a teaspoon.

The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measure used in all my recipes. All measurements are made level.

Fish Stew.—Wipe meat, cut in pieces 3 pounds from the fore-quarter of the shin, chuck or face of rump, put in stewpan, cover with boiling water, and cook slowly 2 hours or until meat is tender; after the first hour cooking, add ½ cup each of carrot and turnip cut in ½-inch cubes and previously par-boiled 5 minutes, thicken with ¼-cup flour diluted with cold water to form thin smooth paste, season with salt and pepper, and serve with dumplings; sprinkle all with finely chopped parsley after placing the stew on serving platter.

Pressed Beef Flank. Loaf.—Wipe meat and remove superfluous fat and roll flank of beef, put in kettle and boil with boiling water, add 1 teaspoon salt, ½ tablespoon pepper, cover, a bit of bay leaf, ¼ dozen cloves and 4 or 5 bones. Cook slowly until meat is in shreds. Arrange shreds of meat in a granite brick-shaped bread-pan, pour over liquid, cover with a heavy weight; when cold and jellied, cut in thin slices and serve with whipped cream, horse-radish sauce or mustard sauce.

Fricassee of Lamb with Brown Gravy.—Wipe and cut 3 pounds of lamb from the fore-quarter, in uniform slices for serving, put in kettle, cover with boiling water and cook slowly until meat is tender; remove from water, cool, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute in butter, or salt pork fat until delicately browned. Arrange on a platter and pour around 1½ cups brown sauce. It is better to cook the meat the day before serving, as then the fat may be removed from the liquor more readily.

Beef à la Mode.—Lard a 4-pound piece of beef cut from the round, or face of the rump, season with salt, pepper, and dredge with flour; brown the entire surface in salt-pork fat, put on a trivet in a kettle, surround with ¾-cup each of carrot, turnip, celery and onion, cut in dice; add a sprig of thyme and parsley and a bit of bay leaf, 4 cloves and water or stock enough to half cover the meat. Cover kettle closely, and cook slowly four hours, keeping liquid below

A STRIKING NEW SERIAL

We have arranged to publish in this paper a new story of exceptional merit, both because of its literary merit and its absorbing interest, entitled,

A Rose of Normandy

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

The story is a historical romance of La Salle's exploits in the Mississippi valley, with the heroic Henri de Tonti as the hero. The love story is of the kind that will appeal strongly to every reader who has experienced the sublime emotion, and the adventures are sufficiently thrilling to satisfy the most exacting demands for action. Here are two of hundreds of favorable press comments:

The St. Louis Republic says: "There is a rush of exciting incident which forbids the flagging of interest even for a moment. May therefore take rank among the most deserving novels of the day. Possesses the merits of swift action, picturesque characters, a strong love interest, a vivid setting."

The Baltimore American says: "No more entertaining character has stalked through the pages of any recent novel than that of Henri de Tonti, gentleman, soldier, courier, gallant, the intrepid hero of countless adventures, but withal the true and constant man and lover."

It is an axiom that an intelligent person is never misled by an advertisement; and in this city a merchant who would publish a misleading advertisement would commit business suicide.

BIGNESS.

The concentration in banking which has made such remarkable strides in this country during the past few years is by no means an evolution confined to the United States. It is going on in other countries; and the American consul at Bremen sends to our government a statement of the banking consolidations in Germany in recent years.

There are great groups of banking institutions in Germany, as there are in this country. One group, the largest, is headed by the Deutsche Bank of Berlin. This group has an aggregate capitalization of nearly $105,000,000. The National City Bank group of banks and trust companies in New York has combined capital and surplus of $115,000,000, not counting the capital of affiliated institutions outside this city. The second largest group in Germany is that headed by the Diskontogesellschaft, and this has a combined capitalization of $81,181,000. The capital and surplus of the Bank of Commerce in New York amounts to nearly $4,000,000.

The economic necessity which has produced banking concentration abroad is responsible for the same development in America. It was inevitable that the creation of immense industrial corporations should result in great banks adequate to meet the demands of the new conditions which sprang from this concentration of capital in immense enterprises. A bigger country, a bigger business carried on in a bigger way, by big companies, called for big banks.

This development, though largely natural, involves of course certain dangers to which the Gazette has more than once called attention. The chief danger is that these immense aggregations of banking power may be diverted from true banking functions into the field of promotion and speculation; that they may, in other words, become finance companies instead of banks. Then there is the danger of the temptation to grow big rather than strong and serviceable. The passion for bigness is one of the vices of our times. It results in an unhealthy scramble for deposits among insurance companies, and for unsound expansion among mercantile and industrial concerns.

Indiana proposes a bill prohibiting marriage between whites and Filipinos. Parents living near some of the state educational institutions where Filipino students are studying want the bill. Marriage is a form of benevolent assimilation they do not like.

In Manchuria the contending armies are facing each other with a front 100 miles long, but in this country the line of battle between the government and the beef trust reaches from Boston to Omaha by way of New Orleans.

Over 400 witnesses are to be examined in the beef trust case, although the weary consumer would be inclined to think that conviction could easily be secured on general principles.

As Dr. Osler thinks men cannot do great work when over 40 and Tolstoy has said that a man cannot do great work until after 40, the prospects for ambitious persons of any age seems to be somewhat gloomy.

That army officer who gets sixty years and five days in prison for offenses committed in the Philippines at least may hope that the prison clock is a little fast.

At the annual meeting of the Standard Oil company yesterday it is understood by those on the inside that the managers put in considerable time discussing the weather.

As the presidents of the Pennsylvania coal roads are against the rate-regulating bill, the impression that the bill is a good thing will spread rapidly.

Of course the Smoot case is to be allowed to go over to the next session of congress, when it will come in handy in delaying the railway-rate bill.

A woman sufficiently practical to ask for trading stamps with her marriage license would want a wedding certificate that had divorce coupons attached.

Some days the czar must be tempted to go into the open market and buy as much as a quarter's worth of peace regardless of the price.

Judging from its surprise, the beef trust feels that the government took an unfair advantage in not employing a brass band when advancing to the attack.

Russia may desire to continue the war indefinitely and then again it may only feel that a large, imposing bluff is necessary at this juncture.

For the next few days, at least, it is expected that the beef trust will find it necessary to wear a chunk of its own product over one eye.

Japan's laconic admission that "important naval events are pending in the Indian ocean" must be gloomy reading for the Baltic fleet.

In the near future Russia may be willing to trade the privilege of climbing down gracefully for the privilege of doing so quickly.

If the experiment works well in Russia we might depose the senatorial bureaucracy and see how a zemsky sober would do in its place.

In the interests of senatorial dignity it will be well to put Elkins and La Follette in opposite corners of the senate at the next session.

That college professor who thinks men over 60 are "useless" may have drawn his conclusions while watching the United States senate.

When the railway interests whistled for help against the people the senate promptly stepped forth and executed their orders.

If the democratic tendency in Russia keeps growing Gen. Kuropatkin may yet go home and run for president as a war hero.

Attorney-General Moody hopes to tame the beef trust so that he can lead it around by a nose ring one of these days.

Senator Kean, being from New Jersey, naturally holds a brief for the trusts in the railway-rate regulation matter.

Niedringhaus has managed to arrest his career down the toboggan slide long enough to explain that he is "retiring."

If the sheriff is kind to her Mrs. Chadwick may buy the jail and present it to him when her troubles are over.

Considering the nature of the job, that North sea court of inquiry could not have expected to please everybody.

Nothing short of constitutional treatment will do Russia any good, as sore spots are breaking out all over it.

Col. Cody may be right in saying he was drugged. Many a cocktail requires a qualitative analysis before taking.

Being a citizen of Delaware is not likely to be as lucrative an occupation in the future as it has been in the past.

If Kuropatkin's army is back of him meddlers in St. Petersburg may find that he is a bad man to fool with.

A popular subscription to enable Tom Lawson to hire a private hall might have ample support just now.

Attorney-General Moody wants it understood that he has discovered the cloven hoof of the beef trust.

Judging from the way the czar is acting there must be a trace of Bourbon blood in his veins.

Japan should beware of boosting the price of peace too high.

PRESS COMMENT.

Racine Journal: Chicago republicans are rallying around Harlan for mayor with the most active fight on Chicago has ever known.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Senator Quaries will merely change his title to "judge"—and his new job will last for life.

Chicago Record-Herald: Mrs. Chadwick has $1,500,000 safely concealed in Belgium. If the money is in gold England may annex Belgium.

Madison Journal: Why not a bill to pay expenses of stalwart contention at Chicago convention and later in supreme court? The bills were big enough to be so dignified.

Madison Democrat: The largest diamond in the world was found in South Africa the other day. The stone weighs 3,022 carats—about a pound and a half—and is valued at $4,000,000. Here's another chance for Oshkosh.

El Paso Herald: Things are settling down in this country to a conservative, forever-and-ever basis. Here is the match trust buying timber lands and establishing forestry systems with an idea of guaranteeing itself a perpetual supply of match splints.

Milwaukee News: If the legislature should vote an appropriation to pay Governor La Follette's lawyers in the state ticket case, it might further attest his devotion to the people's cause by reimbursing Uncle Ike for the sacrifices he had made in the struggle for humanity's emancipation.

Shawano Journal: A well-informed lumberman is authority for the statement that while there has been no great advance in the price of lumber, there is a feeling that the upward tendency will be fore pronounced before the spring opens up. This is especially true in regard to white pine, but our informant looks for a general advance all along the line—in short, everything indicates that pine will go back to the prices of 1903.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Iowa has a woman who says she can feed a man properly on 9 cents a day. The proposition is lacking in specifications. Does she mean that a good, wholesome or even luxurious living can be procured upon 9 cents a day? Or does she look upon no man as worth wasting more than 9 cents on daily? Still, there are many men who will take the lady on her own terms, if she will provide the 9 cents.

Superior Telegram: Dr. Osler, after underlining to show that men after sixty years old are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, brings the accusation that old men produce all the worst poems. We are surprised. Hitherto we have supposed that the young man's first poem to his best girl had the undisputed right of way as the worst thing that ever happened—among the things not positively wicked. The old man is entitled to the chrono if he can worst the young man's love poem.

Evening Wisconsin: The statement that an Oshkosh bowler applied to the Associated Charities in this city for fifty cents with which to telephone his employers for money, provokes the Oshkosh Northwestern to observe: "The telephone rate from Milwaukee to Oshkosh is only twenty-five cents, and it is impossible to understand what the alleged Oshkosh man wanted with the other quarter." Here is confirmation of the rumor that whisky in Oshkosh is as free as water.

Pond du Lac Commonwealth: The widow of the Grand Duke Sergius has adopted a somewhat novel, though on the whole commendable, plan to win the respect of the common people. She proposes to furnish dinners for the poor of Moscow for a period of forty days. As this will mean the feeding of 45,000 people, it will involve a considerable expense but it is safe to say that it will not cause the people to forget the austere character of the dead grand duke.

La Crosse Leader-Press: A sentiment is manifested at Madison for a bettering together of the senators on the railway rate bill. Most of the administration senators are beginning to realize that the railways must not be unfairly treated, while the state senators are admitting the necessity of some regulation. It will be a satisfactory ending of the controversy if the legislature can pass a railway commission law without opposition, but it ought not to be the emasculated law proposed by some of the railway representatives who suggest that the commission be given power to fix rates on complaint, but that the rates are not to go into effect until the end of a long drawn out lawsuit in each case.

Chicago Chronicle: When gummed envelopes began to supersede wax-sealed letters a gentleman of the old school upon receiving an epistle inclosed in one of the new contrivances flung it indignantly from him with the exclamation: "What! Does the fellow send me his spittle?" This was the spirit of opposition to innovation manifested. Something of a similar temper is visible in the objections which a good many people make to type-written letters. There are men who look upon the use of the machine as an affront when the communication thus indited is of personal rather than of a strictly business nature, and such people, of course, are at pains to write their friendly missives with the pen. They maintain, with some show of reason, that the pen-written letter has more of the writer's personality than can be imparted by the rapidly tapped keys of a typewriting apparatus. It may be doubted, however, whether the pen-written epistle, with all its sentimental advantages, is ordinarily appreciated at its proper value by the recipient, while the mechanical product is undoubtedly in favor with persons whose correspondents are bad penmen. To put it otherwise, most of us would prefer the absolutely plain and readable typewritten letter, with its sentimental deficiencies, to the all but unrecognizable billets with which a good many people favor their friends.

"Meanest Man" Again. A man at Wexham, England, was given $5 wherewith to buy a wreath for the funeral of a friend of the person who had given the $5. Instead of buying a wreath, the fellow went out to a cemetery, stole a wreath and left it with the mourners and pocketed the $5. But his act was discovered later.

Flesh of Bear and Camel. In Germany bear's flesh is greatly favored, and smoked bear tongues, hams and sausages are both appetizing and expensive. Ever since Paris, in the siege of 1870-71, was driven to eating up the animals at the zoo camel's flesh has been demanded by French gourmets. Remarkably like beef in appearance, it is as tender as veal, and there are Parisians who import it regularly from Algeria.

SHODDY IN A FABRIC.

How Imposition in a Piece of Supposedly Good Cloth May Be Detected.

Worsted cloths are less often adulterated than woolsens and are more easily detected. A cotton worsted is a lie on the face of it, for the cotton stands out with prominence, says the American Wool and Cotton Reporter. But often a cotton thread is twisted with a worsted thread, and to determine its presence it is only necessary to take the twist out of the thread and then examine its component parts.

Cotton, having a long staple, can be carded and combed with wool to bespurn into worsted yarn. This is done to cheapen the cost of production. Cotton is carded and spun with wool and shoddy, not so much to cheapen the yarn, for cotton is generally as expensive as some shoddies, but is introduced to give strength or spinning qualities to the stock. In many cases the shoddy is of such short staple that it would not stand the drawing in spinning, and as it would make the cost of the yarn too high it put in enough wool to give that lacking strength, cotton is put in for this purpose.

The percentage of cotton in a fabric can be determined in this manner: Take a small piece of cloth and weigh it. Now boil it for five minutes in a five per cent solution of caustic soda. Take out what is left and, if any, it is all cotton. The wool will all be dissolved. The percentage of shoddy cannot be determined except by experience.

A cloth or yarn with shoddy in it is easily detected by its feel. Cloth made of all new wool is softer feeling than one containing shoddy, for the latter has lost that new, soft, springy feel peculiar to wool.

WAS BLOWING OFF STEAM.

When He Should Have Been Turning It Off to Save Himself from Injury.

Mr. Jenkins was spending a day at home, battling with a toothache, and making things generally animated for his family, relates Youth's Companion. "Good gracious! How hot it is in this room, and what a noise that radiator is making!" he cried, as he entered his wife's sewing-room, to which she had retreated for a few moments' respite from the strenuous life in the library.

"I suppose this sort of thing goes on every day when I'm not at home to attend to matters. No wonder you all feel cold when you go outdoors!" muttered the sufferer, as he drew out the little plug cock, and the steam escaped with a rush.

"Now you see how simple—" began Mr. Jenkins, but just then the rush of steam changed to a trickle of water, rapidly increasing in flow. He endeavored to replace the plug.

"Hang it!" he roared, as he dropped the plug, and assumed a variety of attitudes, nursing his fingers. "Here I've scalded myself to death, and the water is running over the floor, and nobody stirring! Run to the telephone, somebody, and call up the plumber and tell him to send a man here directly, and— In the name of common sense, Mary, why don't you get some cloths instead of— What are you laughing at?"

"Why don't you try turning off the steam?" she asked, in a tremulous voice.

WISCONSIN CHEESE BEST.

It Leads in Quality and Is Second Only to That of New York in Quantity.

Wisconsin produced during the year 1904 100,000,000 pounds of cheese, which was sold in markets of the United States and the world for an aggregate sum of $10,000,000.

No other state in the union except New York produced anywhere near that amount, says the Milwaukee Free Press. New York exceeded that figure by about 3,000,000 pounds, though only a few thousand dollars in the figure which the product brought in the market.

Wisconsin, according to Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery's last report, has more cheese factories than any other state. But it is not the amount of cheese in which Wisconsin enjoys its greatest fame as a cheese-producing state. It is in the quality. Wisconsin cheese carried off all the grand prizes at the St. Louis exposition in competition with cheese from all parts of the world. Even New York cheese men admit that Wisconsin makes as fine cheese as is to be found anywhere in the world.

Tiny Shoes for Show.

A most curious trade has sprung up lately which illustrates quaintly the pet vanity of woman. It appears that women when staying at hotels or the like do not care to exhibit to the passers along the corridors the exact size of their feet, so they carefully carry with them a couple of pairs of tiny, delicate shoes, which, instead of the ones they are wearing, they place outside their doors for the servants to take down and clean. All the big boot shops in Paris now make a specialty of this tiny footwear, and a pair or two form a portion of the trousseau of every up-to-date bride. Madrid women are said to have the smallest feet; Peruvian women come next and the American girls are a good third.

Frozen Coffee.
Take eight ounces of freshly-ground Mocha coffee. Tie in a cheesecloth and place in a double boiler, together with a pint of boiling milk or cream. Set it aside so as to draw out the flavor of the coffee. Then strain through a napkin into a steptan, containing the yolks of eight eggs and 12 ounces of sugar, add a very small pinch of salt. Stir the mixture over the fire until it begins to thicken, then quicken the motion of the spoon and when the yolks of the eggs are sufficiently set, strain through a sieve into a large basin. Stir a half-pint of whipped cream and one ounce and a half of clarified isinglass in with this. Add a dash of extract of vanilla and freeze.—Detroit Free Press.

Cheese Souffle.
Melt three tablespoons of butter and mix with it two heaping tablespoons of flour; when hot add slowly half a cup of milk. Season highly with salt, pepper and paprika, and just a dash of mustard. Have ready a cupful of grated cheese; stir this in with the other mixture; let it boil up for a minute, then add the beaten yolks of four eggs. Take from the fire and stir in the stiffly-beaten whites; then turn into a baking dish and bake for half an hour or until nicely browned.—Boston Budget.

The Simmerer.
Every kitchen should have at least one simmerer—that is, a saucepan with a double bottom, the lower one perforated to admit air. There is a space of half an inch between this and the upper bottom. Food cooked in a saucepan of this kind cannot burn, and it may be kept at a gentle heat for hours.—Household.

MINSTREL SHOW A BIG SUCCESS

EVERYBODY DELIGHTED WITH PERFORMANCE LAST NIGHT.

TOO FEW THEATER SEATS

To Supply the Big Crowd That Sought Admittance—A Credit to Band Men.

Last night's minstrel performance took its rank with the successful home-talent productions that have been given in this city, and that is saying a good deal in Janesville. Some of the musical and comedy work easily equalled the best of the professionals and all of it was good. When the curtain rose for the opening chorus of "O. Hall Us Ye Ye Ye," every seat in the big auditorium was occupied, and scores were standing up. The scene presented was instantly satisfying and pleasing to the eye. In the semi-circle of black-face vocalists faultlessly attired in evening dress, the interloper on his raised dais in the center, and high up in the scenic background, the stringed orchestra—every detail was in strict conformity with the best of minstrel traditions.

Arrival of End-Men
With becoming dignity and grace George Paris introduced the end-men, Harry Bliss and George Hatch, attired in long coats and trousers of faultless white, who swept in breezily and collided at the center of the stage. The interloper then sounded the bell, the orchestra started playing, and Harry Cody in his fine baritone sang "God Night Beloved." Then the last of the end-men—W. F. Cody and L. L. Leslie—appeared and the unreeling of the gags began. There were numerous local hits and the jokes could be taken "with-out the use of an anaesthetic." A. E. Rollins pleased his hearers with "When the Winds O'er the Sea" and H. H. Bliss with his humorous solo "Countess of Algazam." William Garbutt's "In Society" with the quartette joining in the refrain, George Paris' bass solo "Down in the Deep," William Cody's "My Bamboo Queen," C. B. Eastman's sweet tenor solo "If Dreams Come True," John Baumann's amusing "There's a Dark Man Coming with a Bundle," and C. S. Buck's delightful "Harvest Moon" solo were all enjoyed and George Hatch made a big hit in his combination song and dance, "Listen to the Big Brass Band." The first part closed with the inspiring "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, sung by the entire company.

Full Band on Stage
Part two of the program opened with an overture by the orchestra and the appearance of "Just Plain Harry Bliss" who jollied his audience on the sugar-bet proposition and prepared to take their picture with an explosive camera loaded with a dish-pail. After that the curtain fell and rose again, revealing the Imperial band, uniformed and grouped in a manner pleasing to the eye. The overture, "Supper, Poet, and Peasant," provoked such a storm of applause that Leader Al Kniff was compelled to turn repeatedly and bow acknowledgments. It was one of the finest renditions ever given by that band. The "Dawn of Love" by Bendix and Scanton's march "Get in Line" followed. After that came James Cullen's excellent drum-major act and the laugh-provoking farce "Fifteen Minutes with the Doctor," introducing John Baumann as the deaf Dr. Sockem, Arthur Baumann as "Slutting Kitty," and L. L. Leslie as the mellow-voiced Irishman who is minus one lung. The skit could not have been better performed by professionals. W. F. Cody, made up as a Chinaman, was called back after his quaint little ornamental song and dance and the performance closed with a dawn and night scene in a pond of swaying water lilies. Henry Cody, floating in with his canoe, sang "Down Where the Water Lilies Bloom" and the black-faces, framed in the huge white petals and reflecting the glow of mysterious colored lights nodded gently as they joined in the beautiful refrain.

COW BOYS WILL DO THEIR PART

ROOSEVELT'S INAUGURATION TO BE A VERY GAY SPECTACLE.

HIS COW BOY FRIENDS, GUESTS

President Will Be Escorted to the Place of Ceremony by Wild
West Aggregation.

Seth Bullock, sheriff of Deadwood, idol of South Dakota, picturesque plainsman, and with a gentleman, who enjoys the personal friendship of President Roosevelt, is busy out in the hills of the northwest gathering together a band of genuine western cowboys, whom he will take to Washington arrayed in all their fantastic regalia to participate in the inaugural parade. Seth is a conservative man but even he admits that when these sun-browned boys of the west prance up and down Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, on their ponies that the multitude will be delighted and that the inaugural visitors will enjoy a real cowboy treat.

President Roosevelt has expressed a wish that the men who "round up" the herd, "hog-tie" and "cut-out" big wild-eyed steers, "bust" bronchos, ride "cayuses" and conquer "outlaws," shall be represented in the inaugural parade and it is in obedience to this wish that Captain Bullock has undertaken the project, which bids fair to add that final touch of picturesqueness to the inaugural ceremonies. Cowpunchers have never before taken part in an inaugural parade, and with their "claps" and lariats and "big horn" saddles should prove a feature of the pageant.

Captain Bullock has addressed himself to the task of "rounding up" the cowpunchers for their journey to Washington with characteristic energy and enthusiasm and promises to bring with him to the national capital the rarest bunch of "wild-and-wooly" westerners that ever passed along a civilized boulevard.

With the cowpunchers will come a number of well-known characters, who, strictly speaking, are not to be classed as cowboys, but who are closely allied to them, and admiring the president are eager to join them in giving him a "send-off." These westerners, these representatives of the great region and the wild free life that President Roosevelt knows and loves so well are all for pleasing and gratifying the man whom they regard as one of themselves, and will out a striking feature in the inaugural parade. They are not only going to wear the conventional cowboy dress, but they are going to ride their own "cayuses" (which the good people must know means ponies), in the parade. Captain Bullock is to command them, and the famous old frontiersman, while giving them sufficient license and liberty to insure their riding naturally, will yet subject them to discipline and hold them strictly accountable for their deportment. He declares that he will tolerate no "foolishness" on their part, and they all understand that he will see to it that what he says "goes."

Captain Bullock expects to bring with him not less than fifty men and ponies. He says he could easily take a hundred and fifty or two hundred if it were practicable to accommodate so many, for well nigh every cow-puncher in the Deadwood region has signified his desire to go.

The men will gather at Belle Fourche, in the heart of the cattle region of the hills, and start for the national capital from there. Arrangements have been made with the railroad companies to transport the men in tourist sleepers and the horses in stock cars. It is estimated that the trip will cost each man approximately $100. Most of them mean say they will try to sell their ponies in Washington in order to cut down expenses, but it is predicted by students of the cowboy that most of them will change their minds when the time comes to pay return freight on the ponies rather than part with them. The average cow-puncher overishes for his cayuse an affection scarcely less deep and warm as toward those that he calls his human friends, and it is rare that one of them parts with his four-footed companions if he can help it.

Among the well-known western characters that will come along with the cow-punchers is "Deadwood Dick" Clark, the once-famous scout, bandit hunter and leader of the "shot-gun men," who guarded the Wells Fargo Express treasure coach from Deadwood to civilization a quarter of a century or more ago.

The small boys whose hair has stood on end as they read of the escapades of Deadwood Dick in the dime novels of exciting literature, will peep out from under the protecting arm of their fathers or big brothers, just to get a glimpse of the wonderful man, who to them is far greater than the president of the United States.

"Tex" Burgess, the king of the cowboys on the big Hyannis range in Nebraska, is another. Captain Seth Bullock, Deadwood Dick and Tex Burgess constitute a trio that alone would be worth traveling 2,000 miles to see in an inaugural parade. The fame of Captain Bullock and Deadwood Dick extends, or once extended from ocean to ocean, and the deeds of valor and daring they did in the early days in the western hills would make a tale stranger and more thrilling than any romance ever written.

As for Tex Burgess, his fame may not be so broad as that of the others, but it is as great as far as it goes. They all are men of types that with the advance of civilization are fast disappearing from the west and will soon have passed away altogether. The once famous Deadwood Dick, the man who in pioneer days in South Dakota was the terror of all "bad men" in the region, and performed well nigh a miraculous feat of daring, is now a workman in plain blue overalls in the northwest railway yards at Lead, five miles north of Deadwood. After the red border days he laid aside his rifle, his brace of pistols and his buckskin suit, and donning the garb of civilization engaged in railroad work, and for a number of years now he has been a yardman at Lead. He is a middle-aged man of medium height, with brown hair and beard, and clear gray eyes and a pleasing smile—the last man in the world a stranger would take for the celebrated scout and bandit hunter of early days.

He is loath to talk of the exploits of his youth, but if you exercise patience you can draw him out and induce him to tell you some of the thrilling adventures he met with when he was so much in the public eye. It was as leader of the shotgun men that he was best known, although as a scout he attained great distinction. There were nine men in his shotgun brigade, and there were perhaps no other nine men in the country who would have been a match for them in a rough-and-tumble scrimmage. The "express treasure" they guarded from Deadwood to Sidney, 200 miles away was never lost. Road agents made many attempts to hold up and rob the treasure coach, but Deadwood Dick and his trusty brigade were always there. One night the brigade killed a whole band of road agents in a lonely spot in the hills. Deadwood Dick and his son carried short breech-loading shotguns loaded with slugs and they shot with unerring accuracy and always to kill.

A letter was received at Washington from Deadwood Dick the other day. "Sure we're going down to Washington to see Teddy inaugurated," he says. "We old westerners feel that he is one of us and shall be glad to help him send off. I reckon the cow-punchers Captain Bullock is to take with him will cut quite a figure when they get down there, but they will be no novelty to the president, for he used to be one of them himself, you know. But a good many other folks will look on 'em with a good deal of interest and curiosity."

"I think he is doing the right thing in inviting the boys to take part in the show. It tickles 'em nearly to death to know that he wants 'em to ride their 'cayuses' in the parade. Some of the boys used to know Teddy when he was a rancher out west and they all have a mighty warm spot in their hearts for him."

Tex Burgess, who is going to ride his pony all the way from Hyannis, Neb., to Belle Fourche, S. D., to join the cow-punchers on their trip to Washington, is an ardent admirer of President Roosevelt, and is full of enthusiasm over the invitation extended to the bunches of bronchos to take part in the inaugural parade.

Tex Burgess has also written a letter to let the folks of Washington know that he is not going to be left out in the foot-hills while there is anything doing in Washington.

"You just bet I'm going," he says. "I wouldn't miss it for a thousand dollars. We all want to go but Captain Bullock says he can't accommodate all of us, so some of us will have to stay at home. Most of those who are going are from Black Hills. Only a few will come from the Hyannis and other ranches in Nebraska. I wished to go and Captain Bullock has promised to take me. Billy Binder and Doc Williams and some of the others of the more noted riders in this region want to go, too, but I don't know whether they will. We are mighty pleased at the invitation to take part in the show. It shows that the president thinks a cowboy is as good as anybody else as long as he behaves himself, and you can bet we'll behave ourselves."

YOUNG IMITATOR OF MUCH MARRIED HOCH

Ira S. Moyer, Who Was Wedded to a Janesville Young Woman, Arrested at Colorado Springs for Bigamy.

Ira S. Moyer, aged 26 years, a former student of the school of telegraphy and porter at the Hotel Myers, is under arrest at Colorado Springs and will be returned to Keokuk, Iowa, where he was married last Christmas to one Lella McCarthy of that city to answer to the charge of bigamy. When the youth attempted to sell forty acres of land, relatives of the girl made investigations and discovered that he had a wife in Janesville. The latter was formerly Miss Cecelia Goodman, a domestic employed in Judge Fitts' household, and she claims to have married Moyer at Union Center, Juneau county, Wisconsin, on August 2, 1901. She is at present residing at 151 Locust street and has retained Attorney Angie King to prosecute the case. Before slipping away, a few weeks after the marriage in Wisconsin, to enter upon new matrimonial ventures in Iowa, Moyer is alleged to have gotten possession of considerable money belonging to the Janesville young woman.

WOMAN SECURES SHARE OF RICH MAN'S ESTATE

Demand for $500,000 Is Compromised for $300,000 by Stenographer.

New York, March 1.—Henry W. Oliver, who died in Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 7, left a fortune estimated at from $400,000 to $500,000. Of this estate Mrs. Margaret L. Kingsley, or Mrs. A. C. Carpenter, as she sometimes prefers to be known, who twelve years ago was a stenographer employed at the Fifth Avenue hotel in this city, claimed $300,000. It is said she has secured $200,000 in settlement.

Almost before Mr. Oliver's body was laid in the grave Mrs. Kingsley opened her campaign on the Oliver millions. Her claim was fought, but there is good reason to believe that a compromise was made by the executors of the Oliver estate and that it alone averted a lawsuit. By the compromise Mrs. Kingsley obtains the $300,000.

Mrs. Kingsley has one child, a daughter, 8 years old, born in this city, and bearing the name of Charlotte Carpenter. This child was the mother's weapon of attack on the estate of Mr. Oliver. Her claim is that the multimillionaire was the father of the child and the destroyer of her own happiness.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Foolish Little Duck

Have you ever seen a duckling? A duckling is a small duck, and they are the cutest, yellowest little things you ever came across, without a single feather, their little bodies being covered only with fine down, from which the feathers later grow.

There was once a duckling—not a very old one either; in fact, he had just got his head thrust through the shell of an egg and taken his first peep at the wide, wide world.

"My," he exclaimed, "isn't this grand to be able to leave this old shell and see the sights!"

"But," cried a spring chicken who was standing near, "you may not like it after awhile. The rain may pour down and wet you as it did me the first day I was in the barnyard."

"That gave the duckling something to think about. Presently he made up his mind as to what to do.

"I shall simply stay in my shell," said he. "When it rains I shall draw in my head, and if the water rises about me my shell will float like a boat."

Of course Master Duckling was very much pleased with his idea, and he drew in his head and went to sleep. While he slept a great storm came up, and the shell, instead of floating like a boat, sank in the water like a rock.

Master Duckling was sure that he would drown before help could reach him.

"Come out of your shell!" cried a big duck, who was swimming about in the water.

Then the duckling, with a mighty effort, burst the sides of his shell and in a few minutes was paddling around as happy as he could be.

"Isn't it a shame," said he to himself, "that I did not have sense enough to come out of my shell before?"—Detroit Journal.

MUCH INTEREST NOW EXHIBITED

Description of Fox River Valley Mine Published Yesterday, Interests Many.

Much interest has been developed in the Fox River Valley mine which was described in the special article in last evening's issue of the Gazette. Mr. Russell was out of the city yesterday in attendance at a meeting of the board of directors of the mine, held at Algonquin, Ill., and since his return this morning has had many inquiries regarding the stock and mine. The subscription sale opened this morning at nine and closes on Saturday at three. The rich holdings of this company and the fact that the Hazel Green district is rapidly becoming the center of the future lead and zinc operations have made people looking for a good investment turn to this proposition which Mr. Russell offers to the Janesville public.

HOWARD-WYSE WEDDING
SOLEMNIZED ON MONDAY

Pretty Wedding in the Town of Porter —Popular Young People Joined.

Miss Georgia Howard and Fred J. Wyse, both of the town of Magnolia, were happily married Monday evening at seven o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Churm of Evansville pronouncing the words which united them. The young couple were attended by Miss Edith Howard, a sister of the bride, and Maney Hess. The wedding march was played by Miss Churm, daughter of the officiating clergyman. Those present besides the members of the immediate families were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, and Mrs. Thomas J. Griffin of Janesville, Alex. Minns of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Brown of the town of Center.

REPORT OF FOOTVILLE LIBRARY FOR PAST YEAR

Great Educational Work Being Carried on With But Little Means.

Footville, Feb. 28.—The following is the report of the Footville public library: During the year 1904 to February 1905 have raised by subscription, entertainments, etc., about $105. Have paid out for janitor work $12, for rent $39, for wood and supplies for room $15, for magazines, periodicals $16, for books $10. The library contains 356 books, five magazines and the Janesville Gazette—the latter is presented. During the year have had 117 books, including bound periodicals, from the Free Library Commission at Madison. Have 128 borrowers. Number of books in circulation from home library 1,623, state library 707, making a total of 2,330 books read during the year, and this by a population of not more than 300. Donations of good books and periodicals are gladly accepted. Our appeal to the citizens of Footville is: shall the good work continue or must we drop it for lack of funds? New books are needed to keep up the interest.

Mrs. Lena Long of Center spent Friday and Saturday here visiting friends.

The Footville band will have a dance in the hall Friday evening, March 3. All are invited.

Miss Nellie Canary spent Sunday at home.

Don't forget the revival meetings at the Christian every night this week.

Old Grandma Snyder is quite sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dean.

The entertainment given by the school Friday evening was a decided success. Much credit is due to the teachers as well as the scholars.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Janesville was buried at the Grove cemetery Saturday.

Mrs. Albert Greenwalt returned home from Orfordville on Tuesday, being called there by the serious illness of her mother.

Among those from Magnolia who attended the school entertainment Friday evening were Mrs. Warren Cain, Hallie Weaver, Grace Clark and Will Brown.

Presiding Elder McChesney held quarterly meeting at the M. E. church Sunday.

The Misses Maude Crall and Daisy Fisher of Center, spent part of last week among friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sperry attended a lecture in Fulton Friday evening.

Miss Ella Sperry spent part of this last week with relatives and friends in Janesville and Evansville.

Quite a number from here attended the Farmers' Institute, held in Evansville Friday and Saturday. All report is very good.

Miss Maude Gibbs spent Sunday with her parents in Evansville.

Is Your Blood and Stomach Out of Order?

IF SO READ THIS.

The experience of Mrs. F. E. Ritter, of Dallas, Texas, with our medicines is best told by herself in a letter written on July 3, 1904, which reads as follows: "I know from personal experience that Seven Bars and Globe Pills are the very best medicines on earth for blood and stomach troubles. I am in better health than I ever was in my life. You are at liberty to publish my opinion of your medicines. I hope that God's blessing will follow you through life."

We don't know Mrs. Ritter, but we do know that Seven Bars has cured a good many people who suffered with disordered stomachs. We know, too, that it is a purely vegetable remedy, and people say it is easy and pleasant to take. The doses are small. Seven Bars has been made and sold for 35 years, and if it wasn't a sure cure for stomach troubles, the company back of it wouldn't refund the money if it failed to cure. But you don't know the company, you say; all right, you know us. Deposit 50 cents with us and take a bottle of Seven Bars home and try it. If it doesn't do all that is claimed, bring the empty or partly used bottle back and get your money. There is only one way to be cured and that is to try it, and we don't know of any firmer way to get you to make the trial. Do you?

BADGER DRUG COMPANY.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Jensen expect to move soon to Evansville. Hoakenson-Julsette.

On Saturday afternoon, February 25, at one o'clock in Stoughton, the Rev. Hegge spoke the words that united as husband and wife, Miss Emma Hoakenson of this place, and Mr. Edward Julseth of East Union. The bride was attired in a handsome gown of green and the groom in conventional black. They were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Rena Hoakenson and the groom's uncle, Mr. Albert Julseth. Immediately after the ceremony the entire bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hoakenson, where a bountiful dinner was awaiting them. After partaking of the repast a reception was held in the evening consisting only of the two immediate families. Many useful and valuable presents were received. The bride is a young lady, highly esteemed by all who know her. And the groom is a prosperous young farmer, and also has a wide circle of friends. The young couple will soon make their home on the Jensen farm recently purchased by the groom's father, Hans Julseth. The best wishes of all go with them through life's journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kyle are rejoicing over the arrival of a son.

Samuel McConnell and Roy Van Horn attended the school at Warner's last Saturday. Mr. McConnell being the champion shot of the day.

EVANSVILLE

Evansville, Feb. 28.—A grand entertainment will be given in the opera-house Monday evening, March 6, entitled "The Musical Director of Venice," a musical comedy. The characters of the play are in the hands of artists well known in this part of the country. Prof. Chas. Nitschke is a celebrated violinist. Mrs. Katharina Shamporin is a good singer and violinist. Miss Bessie Layton has taken part in several operas and has a beautiful voice. Miss Emma Melham has a reputation as being a first-class accompanist.

An opera will be staged here March 9 and 10 by local talent, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church. The title is "The National Flower" and will require about eighty people. Mesdames Grundy and Love of Chicago are preparing the participants.

The Baker Military band will give their first annual concert and dance Tuesday evening, March 6th. Concert from 8 to 9. Dancing will follow the concert. Leaver's orchestra.

Mr. Zellar and family expect to take their departure for Michigan soon, where they will make their future home.

Bert Baker expects to soon take a trip to New Mexico and if favorably impressed with the climate and country will move his family there.

Mrs. Geo. Meekins, who is taking treatments at a sanitarium in Madison, is improving very slowly.

R. M. Richmond spent last week in Milwaukee attending a meeting of the Masonic order.

Barnard and Wilder's warehouse began sorting again Monday morning, after being closed about two weeks.

Mr. Wm. Ross of the Janesville Gazette was in this city Tuesday.

ROCK RIVER.

Rock River, Feb. 28.—Byron Vincent of Beloit visited his parents the first of last week.

It is somewhat very convenient to have a good credit of payment of debts, not only for yourself but for others, as was proven not long ago. A week or so ago a man entered a store at Milton Junction, saving a neighbor, Elmer Vincent, wished him to get a list of goods, as he could not leave home on account of sickness in the family. The long list was quickly made out and the man, without paying for them, took them and disappeared. As Mr. Vincent had not ordered the goods, the question is, who is enjoying that long list of groceries gotten at the expense of a neighbor's good credit?

A social for the benefit of the organ fund will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Vanhorn at Milton Junction, Wednesday evening, March 8th.

Mr. Charley Balch, who has been quite sick, is better.

Mrs. S. J. Corliss is helping Mrs. Elmer Vincent this week.

Mignon and Hugh Whitford, who have been quite sick, are better.

"Do you hear them wedding bells?" If you don't just listen.

Consults A Physician

But does NOT Tell Him All.

Few women confide fully in a physician. They simply will not tell him all. That's why many doctors fail to cure female diseases.

Every woman dreads the ordeal of the physician's consulting room. A sensitive, refined woman shrinks from the searching questions and the physical examination!

It is not so in writing to Mrs. Pinkham. Thousands of women owe their present health and happiness (yes, and their good looks, too) to the fact that they have told all their physical troubles to Mrs. Pinkham and followed her advice and been cured of female diseases.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cures more women every year than any other medicine in the world. If you are in doubt about your case, write in perfect confidence to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. You will receive in reply a personal letter of advice free.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For three months I was sick in bed with female trouble and had four doctors, who all agreed that I must undergo an operation and have my ovaries removed. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I submitted to an operation. I did so and am very glad to say that after I had used five bottles I was restored to perfect health, which I have enjoyed ever since. I am only too glad to recommend your medicines, as they saved me from an operation which might have proved fatal.

MRS. M. KUTTNER.

556 South Main St., Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. Hayes also profited by Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote you describing my symptoms (fibroid tumor) and asked your advice. You replied and I followed all your directions carefully and to-day am a well woman.

MRS. E. F. HAYES.

THE MINORITY

By FREDERICK TREVON HILL
Author of "The Case and Exceptions," Etc.

(Copyright, 1902, by Frederick A. Stokes & Co.)

"Then I'd better not respond to an encore. What made you speak of fairy tales? Don't you care for them?"

"They were the only things I could read at the hospital. People brought me heaps of reading matter, scientific, economic, philosophic—every kind of literature—and novels by the ton. But the only thing which didn't bore me was a book of fairy tales which I began reading aloud to one of the kids in the children's ward, and ended by appropriating for my own amusement. I read each story perhaps a dozen times, and every reading placed me more and more under the magic spell. I have never had any patience with fairy tales since I became a grown-up, and yet when I was absorbed in those pages I recovered all my childish sense of proportion. The princesses were more than mere men, the giants enormous, the good fairies impossible to doubt, and the bad ones excitingly possible, with just sufficient improbability to keep them from being too scary."

"I know!"

"What! have you—"

"Lots, and lots and lots of times!"

Surely it was an eager, animated little girl that nodded rapidly as she answered, looking out at him through the waning firelight—a small comrade, sympathetic, enthusiastic and fearless. There was a delightful suggestion of womanhood, it is true, in the dressing of the hair—the big braids had been cleverly transformed into quite the young lady's coiffure—there was even a hint of coquetry in the daffodils which nestled between the wavy strands—and a delicious assumption of quiet dignity, in perfect keeping with natural childish grace and innocence. But these only added to the picture.

Kennard nodded back at this charming little companion—smilingly, confidently.

"When I was a small boy," he continued—"I mean a very little chap, you know—I used to squat on the nursery floor before the fire—it was impossible to sit in a chair and read fairy tales, things seemed all wrong that way—and, will you believe it? at the hospital I felt an irresistible impulse to drop down on the floor and sit cross-legged whenever I touched that book."

"And did you? Oh, of course you must have! They wouldn't have come back otherwise."

The words were the statement of an indisputable fact.

"Who wouldn't have come back?" he asked.

"Why, the fairies, of course, and the princesses and the princesses, and oh—everybody."

"Do they often come back to you?"

There was an earnest, almost anxious note in Kennard's voice.

"No. At least they haven't for a long, long time."

"Sometimes they wouldn't come to me. I never discovered the reason, for when they did return I was afraid to question why, lest I break the spell. Yet I know this. Fairyland is possible only at joyous hours."

"Did you have many of those at the hospital?"

"A few. People were very good to me, and when some of them called, I—"

"Of course you had visitors and—"

"I didn't see everybody who came," he continued, "but I always knew when—when certain people had been there, even though their visits weren't reported, for then the fairy tales seemed most real."

The clock on the mantelpiece was still ticking; its sound no longer offensive, but companionable, friendly, and cheery.

"Who wrote those wonderful tales?" she asked after a pause.

He glanced at her reproachfully.

"What a question! The very suggestion turns my prancing steeds into mice, my coachmen and footmen into rats, leaves a pumpkin in place of the chariot, and as for the poor little princess—"

"I withdraw the question absolutely. Banish the suggestion by telling me one of the stories."

"Would that be wise after what I've claimed for them? I might spoil it in the telling, and then—"

"I'm sure you wouldn't and— Well, we're both believers, you know."

With that word "we" on her lips he could have refused her nothing—would have attempted a far more difficult task to hear her repeat it.

"Very well. Let me see. There was one about a giant, and another about an enchanted ring, and a third about a prince. Suppose I try that one. I'm afraid it won't sound real, but— Once upon a time there lived, in the Kingdom of Desires, a prince—"

There was a rustle of silk beside him, and Kennard turned quickly to the sound. Leslie had slipped softly to the floor, and was sitting, with her feet tucked under her, her elbows on her knees and her chin in her hands, staring into the fire.

"Once upon a time in the Kingdom of Desires there lived a prince," she prompted, without looking up.

"A big-headed, self-opinionated, ignorant little prince," corrected Kennard, "who didn't believe in fairies, despite the testimony of a very wise old nurse who told the most convincing tales. But every time the prince heard of a fairy he pooh-poohed the idea, and said it couldn't be, and it wasn't possible, and was really quite absurd. 'Bah, pish, tush, gammon!'" was his unvarying reply to every story of his nurse, to whom he was very rude and inattentive. One day she grew angry with him, and said he'd repent of his ignorance before long. But the little prince replied, 'Bah, pish, tush, gammon!'" and turned to his blocks and puzzles, which interested him far more, and with which he played all day long. But by and by, as the prince grew older, he wearied of his blocks, which had come to be no play at all but very hard work indeed. Still he labored along diligently, though joylessly, building up castles which always toppled before he reached the summit, and trying solutions for hopelessly complicated puzzles. Now, one day, while engaged as usual in this dreary task, a fairy came to him and touched him on the shoulder.

"What are you trying to do?" she asked.

"Nothing you could understand," he answered without looking up. "Go away. I'm busy."

"At this reply there came to his ear the sound of laughter, low at first, but clear and musical like sunlit water bubbling joyfully over mossy rocks. The prince looked up surprised at the sound, and discovered standing before him the most enchanting princess he ever saw—not a stately, saintly, stupid princess, but a merry, teasing, clever princess, with eyes which could be thoughtful and mischievous, earnest and—Well, her eyes were very wonderful indeed."

"Who sent you here?" asked the prince, in astonishment.

"The fairies, of course," she answered brightly.

"Bah, pish, tush, gammon!" began the prince, and then, glancing again at the princess' face, he stopped short and pushed his blocks and puzzles aside.

"What do you want?" he asked a little less roughly.

"At this the princess laughed again, and this time the air seemed filled with the joyous songs of birds, and all sorts of things."

"Who sent you here?" asked the prince, in astonishment.

"The fairies, of course," she answered brightly.

him and pointed to the confused heap of blocks and puzzles at his feet.

"What are those?" she asked.

"Nothing but a lot of ugly, stupid things," he muttered, absent-mindedly and without taking his eyes off the garden.

"Why, I think they're splendid!" she interrupted so enthusiastically that the prince turned, and, to his clumsy blocks had been transformed at her words to things of dignity and beauty. But when the amazed prince looked up again, the garden had vanished, the prison-like courtyard had returned, and, worst of all, the princess had utterly disappeared.

Kennard paused for a moment.

"Shall I go on?" he asked.

His audience merely nodded her answer, nestling closer to the fire with a little shiver of comfortable excitement.

"For a while the prince sat rubbing his eyes and wondering if it were all a dream, and then suddenly his glance fell upon his neglected blocks."

"They're splendid!" was what she had said. As he repeated the words, all his old delight returned and he began to work again with new energy and understanding. But by and by things commenced to go worse than they had ever done before. Everything he touched seemed doomed to failure. His blocks slipped and cracked and split under his hands, no two would fit together, and his most carefully planned castles fell and hurt him sorely in falling. Then he swore in his anger, and he bewitched them and brought about all his troubles. For many hours he raged, silently upbraiding and reviling her with much bitterness of spirit, cursing the day she had come into his life, and plotting for adequate revenge. But even as he stormed, the sound of her voice sang in his ears, and he grew calmer. Then gradually the injustice and disloyalty of his suspicions were revealed to him in their ugliest light, and he hated himself horribly for his folly and littleness of soul, and longed to make reparation. But though he often thought of confessing and praying for pardon, he feared, if the princess knew what a pitiful fellow he was, she might withdraw forever from his sight. And that he dared not risk.

"So time went on, and the prince saw much of the princess, who showed him many wonderful things and many marvellous realms undreamed of in his narrow little Kingdom of Desires, broadening his view and giving new inspiration and meaning to his daily tasks. But disappointment attended his every effort, and bitter, disheartening failure stared him in the face. It was the princess who kept him from abandoning his work in despair, and her splendid, unselfish aid alone saved him from utter disaster."

"This the prince knew, and yet he could speak no word of what was in his heart, for all his disloyal thoughts and unjust suspicions turned into giants which thrust themselves between him and the princess, and would not suffer him to reach her ear. But by the time the prince had attacked and slain these ugly monsters and was prepared to lay their severed heads beneath the princess' feet, lo, she herself had utterly disappeared."

"Then the prince realized, as never before, that neither work nor play nor anything else in life had interest or meaning for him if the princess were not near, and he started out to find her, travelling many a day and many a night over rough roads and through gloomy forests until at last he came in sight of her dear face. But though he could see her, she was still a great distance from him, and obstructions of every kind sprang up and barred his path. No sooner did he overcome one barrier than another faced him, and tangles grew faster than he could cut them down. He tried to call to her, but the word-spirits laughed his messages away and the echoes made mocking answers. Still he struggled to get nearer, but all his efforts were in vain, and the more desperately he fought the further away the princess seemed to be. So at last, in sheer despair, he threw himself down on the ground and called upon the fairies to help him. But the fairies, when they came, merely answered by forming a ring about him and singing as they danced—

"You must believe in us first, Believe in us first, 'lieve in us, 'lieve in us first!"

"At which the prince leaped to his feet, and cried out, ever so earnestly, that he did believe, and begged them to carry his message to the princess, or show the way to her."

"But the fairies asked who he was, and when he replied, 'a prince,' they burst into fits of merriment, shouting—

"A prince, indeed! A pretty prince! You're the fellow that didn't believe in us. Bah, pish, tush, gammon!" and they joined hands again and danced around him, laughing madly and mockingly. So the prince turned sadly away."

The fire was a mere bed of ashes, as Kennard paused, but his listener still sat staring into the ruddy glow, her chin resting on her hands. A tiny flame flickered up for an instant, setting big shadows dancing on the walls, and then died down again, leaving the library darker than before. The faint sound of voices, comfortably inaudible and distant, floated in through the half-closed portieres. The pulsations of the wood ashes on the hearth became more and more rapid, as though responding to the noisy heart-beats in the silent room.

"Go on, please."

He heard the words, but could not see her face as she spoke, and for a moment he hesitated.

"Go on, please."

She had turned to him inquiringly, almost pleadingly.

"That's all I know. I'm afraid there's nothing more to tell."

She rose slowly from the hearth rug and slipped back into the great armchair behind her, seeming to nestle there in the warm glow of the firelight.

"My fairy stories always have—always end happily."

A. H. MERRITT.

"Tired in the Morning"

This condition is unnatural. A healthy person gets up in the morning well rested, feeling fine and ready for the day's work.

If you get up in the morning tired, it simply means that your nerves have not rested and their restlessness has not allowed you to rest in the healthy, normal way.

"Tired in the morning." "Run down." "All worn out"—these signs are the warnings—they mean that your nerves need attention.

You must feed some new power to your nerves.

That is just what Paine's Celery Compound does. It feeds new power to the nerves and builds them back to healthy strength.

It makes new Nerve Force.

It makes new vitality and makes life worth living.

That is just why for the past 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universal remedy used tonic in the world.

A. H. MERRITT'S EXPERIENCE WILL PROVE VITALLY INTERESTING TO THOUSANDS.

"Two years ago I had a nervous disorder that completely prostrated me. I couldn't sleep, and would lay and toss about all night, arising in the morning more tired than ever, head heavy, eyes dull, and every bone and muscle aching. I tried to get along without calling in a doctor, but was finally driven to it. He treated me for some time, but with no perceptible improvement. In my health, some one recommended your Paine's Celery Compound. The change it effected in my system was noticeable almost instantly. I gradually took on flesh. The 'all-gone' feeling left me. In less than six weeks I was fully recovered from what looked to me like an everlasting sickness. I feel actually grateful to you, as my health to-day is a testimonial of what your medicine can do. Yours very truly,"—A. H. Merritt, 32 Music Hall Building, Boston, Mass., Feb. 12, 1904. Bandmaster First Regiment Band, Heavy Artillery, M. V. M.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day.

Its effect is almost instantaneous—the nourishment and vigor given to the nerve system by Paine's Celery Compound is felt at once.

The patient feels this at once and gains confidence by it.

The stronger nerve forces have begun at once to make each organ of the body do the work that nature expects of it.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

For over 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this world has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University.

All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

The words were softly spoken, but before they were completely uttered, Kennard had moved to the arm of the chair and was gazing down into her eyes.

"It is your story, Leslie," he whispered earnestly. "You know it is your story if—If you like it."

"So?"

She paused and looked at him as he leaned toward her, one hand resting on the further arm of the chair and touching hers, her eyes meeting his—confidently, jubilantly, unafraid.

"I said it was your story, Leslie. If you liked it, and you said—Say it again, please!"

"Why?"

"Because it will ring out so joyously that my heart will echo with happiness forever after—Do you like your fairy story, Leslie?"

"I—I love it!"

The words burst forth again with the same spontaneous, uncontrollable gladness; but this time the laughter which followed them was smothered.

MODEL HOMES FOR WORKERS

Charles M. Schwab is Building Fifty Houses at Williamsburg, Pa.

Altoona, Pa., March 1.—Charles M. Schwab has let the contract for fifty houses to be used by his workmen in the mills at Williamsburg, a town near here. A local firm has secured the contract, which amounts to about $100,000. Work will begin at once.

The houses will be the best ever given out by a manufacturing plant as quarters for their men. They will cost not less than $2,000 each, and the plans were outlined by Mr. Schwab himself.

Boothblack's Continental Tour.
Plattsburgh, N. Y., March 1.—Harold C. Iwan of Newark, N. J., has arrived in Plattsburgh. He intends to see the country to the Pacific coast by shining shoes to meet expenses. Thus far he has been successful.

Novelty Plant Is Destroyed.
Jewett City, Conn., March 1.—The plant of the Jewett City Textile Novelty company was totally destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $80,000, with insurance of $50,000.

Scald head is an eczema of the scalp—very severe sometimes, but it can be cured. Doan's Ointment, quick and permanent in its results. At any drugstore, 50 cents.

Diphtheria relieved in twenty minutes. Almost miraculous. Dr. Thompson's Electric Oil. At any drugstore. Too late to cure a cold after consumption has fastened its deadly grip on the lungs. Take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup while yet there is time.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

TUNNEL VS. TUBE.

Pretty Fight Between Corporations for Privilege of Carrying Mails.

Washington, March 1.—Through the friendship of a member of congress from Indiana for the Federal Union Surety company of Indianapolis and of others from Illinois for the Illinois Tunnel company, which is digging an underground freight railroad in Chicago, the appropriations for pneumatic tubes in New York, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and a dozen other cities are to be delayed or restricted.

The Federal Surety company was the bondsman of A. G. Wheeler, the contractor for hauling the mails in Chicago. He defaulted on his agreement, and since then the surety company has been filling the contract at a loss. An arrangement has been made by which the tunnel company will take over the contract, and an item has been inserted in the postoffice bill for $173,000 to pay the company for transporting the mails.

The tunnel company expects to be a competitor of the pneumatic tube and is discouraging the granting by congress of any appropriation which extends the tube service in Chicago. It is expected that just as soon as the postoffice appropriation bill passes the senate the influence of the two corporations will be carried to strike out the senate amendment. The amendment was drawn at the postoffice department and has the recommendation of the postmaster general.

President's Salary.
Washington, March 1.—An increase of the president's salary to $100,000 a year was the plea made in congress by Representative Longworth of Ohio. He urged also that diplomats be given more remuneration and declared that an absolute necessity existed for the immediate increase of salaries of ministers in foreign capitals.

Mr. Longworth related what he said was an authentic case where an American minister received and entertained diplomats in a three-room flat filled with the odors of cooking. He related in his shirt-sleeves, and when his visitors arose to go he would present his card and say, "Consider your call returned."

Recess Nominations.
Washington, March 1.—By decision of the senate committee on judiciary, which holds there can be no "constructive recess," the nominations of General Leonard Wood, Dr. W. D. Crum, collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., and 166 other nominations sent to the senate in the infinitesimal period between the adjournment of the special session convened Nov. 9, 1903, and the convening of the regular session Dec. 7, are jeopardized. The decision will affect the salaries of those hit, but it is not probable any action will be taken, the senate merely wishing to establish a precedent.

Extends Oil Land Lease.
Washington, March 1.—An extension of ten years in the Foster lease of oil lands in Indian Territory was incorporated in the Indian appropriation bill by the senate. The Foster lease was the subject of a strong condemnatory note from Secretary Hitchcock, who criticised caustically the action of Secretary Hoke Smith in issuing the lease. It now is a subject for investigation by the department of commerce and labor.

Minister From Colombia.
Washington, March 1.—Full restoration of diplomatic relations between the United States and Colombia is seen in a cablegram received by the state department from Mr. Russell, American minister to Bogota, announcing the appointment of Diego Medosa as minister from Colombia to Washington. He will arrive in a few weeks. President Reyes' action is received here with satisfaction.

Consul General to Shanghai.
Washington, March 1.—President Roosevelt has decided to appoint J. Linn Rodgers of Columbus, Ohio, consul general to Shanghai, to succeed John Goodnow, resigned. Mr. Rodgers was a colonel on Mr. McKinley's staff when Mr. McKinley was governor of Ohio. He was a newspaper man until he was appointed secretary to Gov. Bushnell.

Fairbanks Has a Cold.
Washington, March 1.—Vice President-elect Fairbanks, who caught a severe cold on Washington's birthday, is beginning to feel the ill effects of it. After remaining for a while at the senate, he went home to take every precaution against being disabled on inauguration day.

Statue of Jefferson.
Washington, March 1.—The senate committee on library has authorized a favorable report on a concurrent resolution authorizing Jefferson M. Levy to have made a cast of the Thomas Jefferson statue in the rotunda of the capitol.

Government for Hawaii.
Washington, March 1.—Senator Foraker has reported favorably from the senate committee on Pacific islands and Porto Rico a bill amending the act providing a government for Hawaii.

Land Office Register.
Washington, March 1.—The president has sent to the senate the nomination of John W. Miller to be register of the land office at Wausau, Wis.

Schwab After Steel Plant?
Paterson, N. J., March 1.—It is reported that Charles M. Schwab's recent visit to this city was for the purpose of negotiating for the Passaic Steel company. The plant is valued at $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

WORRY AND HEALTH.

If I could name but one evil that should be forever banished from the world, that evil would be worry. "Worry makes people old; worry makes people sick; worry makes people poor; worry kills." Anger and worry are two of the greatest evils, but of the two evils I think worry is the greater; abolish worry and you abolish the greatest cause of anger.

I have known many people who were made ill unto death by worry. In fact, only recently one of the highest medical authorities has published the opinion that there is no real cause for the dread disease called hydrophobia: that fear and worry, which are practically the same thing, are the cause of the disease. The horse and the dog are about the only domestic animals that exhibit much of the emotional nature, and, therefore, are most capable of worry; and they are about the only animals in which hydrophobia is exhibited.

Less than a year ago a prominent physician died in Chicago of fear and worry. He had been in charge of a patient suffering with hydrophobia, and, becoming impressed with the idea that he had been inoculated, he at once cauterized the wound and applied other preventive measures—but worried. Although there were absolutely no symptoms of the disease, or change of any kind, he kept constantly thinking of it, and at last left his business and went to Chicago for treatment. Still no symptoms appeared, but, in spite of all that could be done to stop the worry, he died in less than two weeks in slight convulsions.

Many a case of lockjaw, in my opinion, has been brought on by suggestion, causing worry, and it, in turn, the disease. A comparatively healthy person runs a rusty nail into the foot, and some one with more tongue than brains immediately suggests that there is danger of lockjaw. The seed is sown in the mind. As the mind can, and in many cases does, unconsciously control every function of the body, the germ thus sown soon grows, and a case of worry is developed which ripens into lockjaw.

It may, at first, appear a cruel method of cure, but many times, in order to prove to a patient that worry and fear were the cause of their illness, I have caused severe sickness and positive pain by suggestion, first suggesting to the patient that certain indications would point strongly to a certain disease, and then minutely describing the disease and its symptoms.

In one such case, inside of a few hours, I had an extremely sensitive woman in bed suffering intensely with a terrible neuralgic pain in her left shoulder. I entered her just as quickly, and, as I knew her to be a woman of good sense, clear logic, and having unlimited confidence in my statements, I afterward explained to her fully what I had done, and why. She saw the point, gladly paid me for my trouble, and thereafter when she was inclined to worry, and fear pain, she would look in the mirror, laugh at herself and say: "Ah-ha, so you want Dr. Reeder to come and suggest a pain in your shoulder, do you?" She would continue thus saying various amusing and ridiculous things until in a thoroughly good humor. She would then say aloud in a positive manner: "I have excellent health, and it is so much to be thankful for." This she would continue to affirm for some time, when the symptoms would disappear.

Not every one can so quickly accomplish results, but all cases that are caused by worry can be cured by suggestion; and the list is much larger than the most fertile imagination would lead you to think. The remarkable success, in many cases, of Christian science, mind cure, mental healing, magnetic healing, —yes, and in 90 per cent. of the cases of drug treatment—is the result of powerful suggestion.

I quit worrying a number of years ago. Before that I weighed 150 pounds, and, as I am nearly six feet tall, I was, to say the least, an interesting looking specimen. During the succeeding year I gained 40 pounds in weight, and since then I have hardly known what sickness and pain are from actual experience, while previously I was continually suffering.

I could cite hundreds of cases in which I know that the law of suggestion, or, as it is called by the professional, suggestive therapeutic laws have cured, and I could fill a whole newspaper with testimonials that would bring me thousands of dollars for miraculously curing diseases. But, as a matter of fact, there was no miracle about it; I simply made a counter suggestion which was more powerful in its effect than the one which caused the trouble or worry. My suggestion acted as an antidote, the worry ceased, the cause was removed, and a cure naturally followed. Within the last month I have known of a highly sensitive person being made ill by worry which was caused by gossip. Serious pain and sleeplessness, followed by what she supposed was heart trouble, resulted, and the family physician was consulted. The process of digestion having ceased, worry was assigned as the cause, the nerves controlling the digestive organs are also the ones which control the emotional nature, and their activity was confined to the process of worry; the emotions being greatly wrought up, the food stayed in it was until fermentation took place, causing an accumulation of gas. The gas raised the diaphragm, which, pressing upon the heart, caused the imaginary heart disease. Is it any wonder that the woman thought her heart was literally broken with grief? No, it was a case of worry caused by gossip—and this would lead me into another subject, but I am afraid I might say some things which would not look "hygienic" in print, if I should candidly express myself upon the subject of gossip. But instead I will only commend to you four things to avoid. For 12 years I have tried to make it a rule of my life to avoid cynicism, criticism, gossip and doubt. Just think what this means; and if you try for one month, real hard, to avoid these four things, you will remove the cause for worry from many a suffering one, so many are sensitive to criticism. "What will people say?" is the bane of their existence. Cynical remarks or thoughts react upon the author and sours and embitters his life. Gossip is, as a rule, of a cynical or criticising nature, sometimes arising from doubt, and sometimes originating in malicious lies. In either case, how much better and happier this world would be, and how much worry might be saved, if there were no cynicism, criticism, gossip, or doubt about the good qualities of the accused.

One of the best friends I ever had was an old gentleman who printed this motto upon all of his business letters: "We should be careful how we judge others; it is so difficult to understand all of the circumstances." Can't you, my dear Home Health Club readers, adopt this motto, and then give a month's trial to avoiding the four evils. For I am certain that at the end of the month you will be so much happier, and, of necessity, healthier, that you will find no cause in the world for worry, and you will never again allow it to infringe upon your peace, health and happiness.

CLUB NOTES.

Prairie Du Chien, Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Sir: What are the prices of the Home Health Club Books and how many are there? Is a swelling of the lower eyelid a sure symptom of kidney disease? If this subject is treated in one of the books, please state which one. Respectfully yours, M. A.

The swelling of the lower eyelid is not an absolute symptom of kidney disease. The only practical method of ascertaining in regard to the condition is to have made a chemical analysis of the urine. The herb remedy of which I told you in my letter will be a great aid in overcoming the trouble.

Good Thunder, Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Sir: Would you have space in your department to publish the standard weights for the different heights of women? I have now reduced my weight to one hundred and fifty pounds. My height is five feet four inches and as you no doubt remember my weight was 209 when I wrote to you about a year ago. I am feeling much better in every way and wish to thank you for your instructions concerning my diet which has removed the unsightly fat while increasing my strength. Yours very truly, Rec. No. 10,241.

Fat in proper amount is a reserve force, a store of energy, a magazine of power, to be drawn upon as a resource in cases of emergency. An excess of fat, of course, becomes a clog and an annoyance, and may itself even become a condition of disease; but a normal amount of it is a condition essential to health.

The following table represents the normal average weight of men and women at different heights:

WOMEN.		MEN.
Height (inches).	Weight.	Height (inches).	Weight.
58	110.64	58	128
59	115.05	59	130
60	119.46	60	132
61	123.87	61	135
62	128.28	62	140
63	132.69	63	145
64	137.10	64	150
65	141.51	65	155
66	145.92	66	160
67	150.33	67	165

A person who finds his weight five or more pounds less than the average person of his height, as shown by the above table ought at once to adopt the necessary measures for recovery of the reserve store of energy which has been lost.

All communications for the Home Health Club should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Indiana, and contain name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

RUSSIANS KEEP UP RETREAT

Japanese Are Reported to Be on All Sides, Being Buoyed by Knowledge That Victory May Mean Speedy Ending of War.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—Reports from the scene of battle near Mukden indicate that the opposing armies are engaged along 100 miles of front in what Russian military experts say is the most vital struggle of the war.

It is feared here that Kourapatkin's position is critical, but there is no confirmation of the report that his retreat northward has become imperative. If Gen. Kuroki succeeds in rolling up the Russian left much further this move by Kourapatkin would seem to be inevitable if he would save his army from a crushing defeat if not annihilation.

The counter strokes on the right and center may possibly be intended to cover the withdrawing trains and stores. If, however, Gen. Kourapatkin is determined to stand and fight out the battle on the line which he has held during the winter, and if he should be able to administer a vigorous check to Gen. Kuroki he has secured a good position for his second move in the great game.

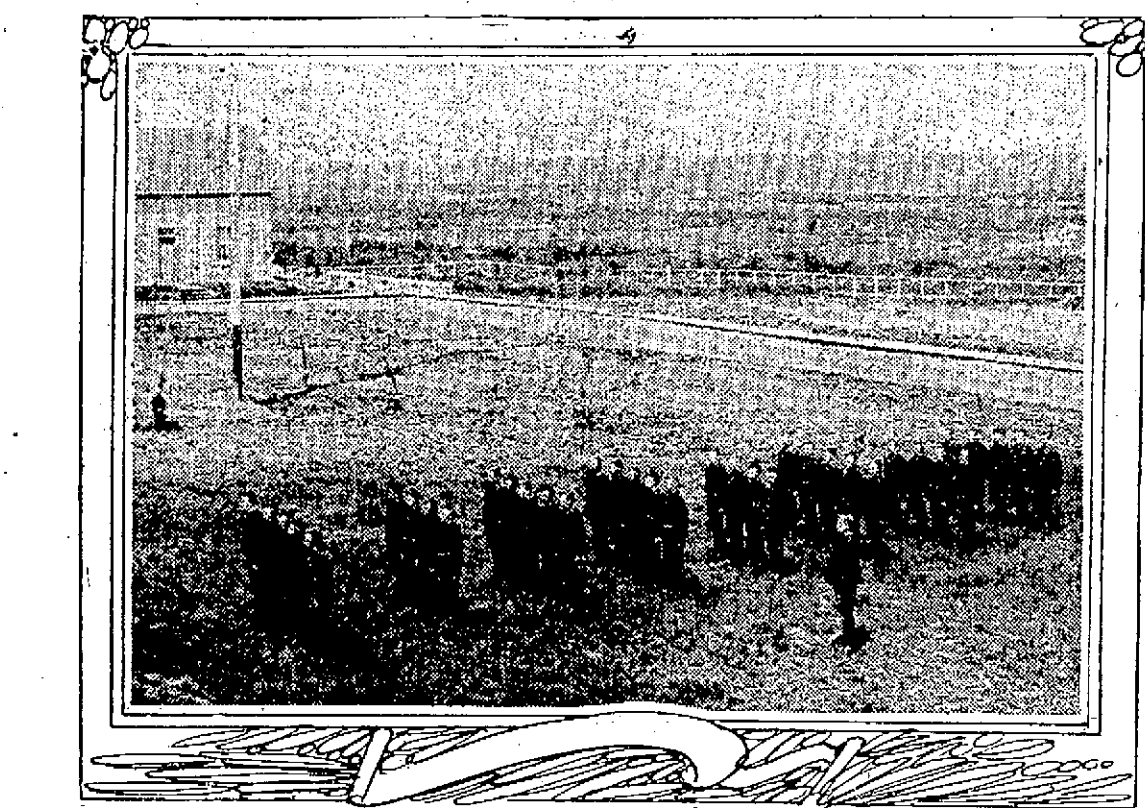

It is reported that Chunchu has cut the railway north of Mukden, tore up miles of track, and destroyed bridges. This might serve to turn a Russian retreat into a rout.

Defeat May Mean Peace. The Russians take hope that Kourapatkin may be able to turn the tide of battle and overwhelm the Japanese from the report that Kourapatkin's men beat back the enemy and occupied a village near Sandapu. Unless the Russians can achieve victory in the pending struggle it is believed it will mark the end of the war in the far east and pave the way to a speedy peace.

Gen. Kourapatkin appears to have taken a leaf out of Field Marshal

Uncle Sam—Now, I might have annexed Mexico, but I had no idea that Dr. Dowie would beat me to it!

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE

The present influx of American settlers into northwest Canada has resulted in several clashes between newcomers in this territory and the Northwest Mounted police—the remarkable organization of mounted patrolmen who are charged with the duty of keeping peace in a territory aggregating thousands of square miles.

Gytha's book and replied to Gen. Kuroki's attack on the Russian left by a counter attack on the Japanese left, in which Gen. Kaibara's initial success is better for the Russians than the best efforts of Gen. Gripenberg, the Russian vanguards being established at the outskirts of Sandapu. At the same time Gen. Kourapatkin delivered a blow against the Japanese center, seizing a railroad bridge across the Shakhe river.

Reports Inspire Hope. The reports, therefore, give a more hopeful aspect to the situation; as the Russian army, though driven out of Da pass, appears to have succeeded in stopping, at least for the moment, the further advance of the Japanese eastward and beaten off the attack on the center.

The effect of yesterday's developments on Gen. Kourapatkin's reported intention to withdraw from Shakhe is problematical. Retirement in the face of the enemy, which is extremely hazardous under any circumstances, is doubly dangerous when the armies are grappling in a general engagement.

Gen. Kourapatkin in a dispatch to Emperor Nicholas, dated yesterday, says: "Ten attacks made by two Japanese battalions and some cavalry west of the village of Yansintong have been repulsed. The Japanese renewed the attack on the morning of Feb. 27 and were again repulsed. They left a hundred corpses in front of our positions. The Russian loss was six men."

NEWS FROM MUKDEN. Mukden, March 1.—Fighting was in progress yesterday along the whole line, the Japanese attacking everywhere. All attacks during the morning were beaten back, and the Russians made counter attacks at many places. On the right flank the Russians occupied the village of Boatzai, which is close to Sandapu, and from that position hurled hand grenades across the intervening ravine into the Japanese trenches in Sandapu, causing heavy loss and great disorder. The Russians have seized the head of the bridge across the Shakhe river in the center of the Japanese lines, assisted by artillery firing of particular energy from "Fulloff" hill and Novgorod hill. Ten determined attacks opposite Yansintong and west of Vanupudzi all were repulsed with heavy loss.
